The Honorable Clint Hackney
House of Representatives

Dear Representative Hackney:

The law library has provided me with a copy of H.C.R. 69, which you introduced in the Legislature in order to have the Legislature rescind the petition by the 65th Legislature asking Congress either to adopt a balanced budget amendment or to call a constitutional convention for the purpose of proposing such an amendment. I enthusiastically support your resolution.

A balanced budget is something devoutly to be wished. I doubt very much, however, whether amending the Constitution is the way to get it. I feel quite certain that even opening the door to the possibility of a constitutional convention would be a tragedy for the country.

We celebrate this year the Bicentennial of the Constitution of the United States. For 200 years it has served us well. I start with a strong presumption against any amendment to it and with an absolutely conclusive belief that we should not have a constitutional convention. Your resolution correctly says that scholarly legal opinion is divided on the potential scope of a constitutional convention's deliberations. I think that is an accurate statement. My own belief, however, is that a constitutional convention cannot be confined to a particular subject, and that anything it adopts and that the states ratify will be valid and will take effect. We have only one precedent, the Convention in Philadelphia in 1787. It was summoned "for the sole and express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation and reporting to Congress and the several Legislatures such alterations and provisions therein." From the very beginning it did not feel confined by the call and gave us a totally new Constitution that completely replaced the Articles of Confederation. I see no reason to believe that a constitutional convention 200 years later could be more narrowly circumscribed.

We will have a balanced budget when we have a President and Congress with the determination to adopt such a budget. I hope that day comes soon, but I hope even more that the day never comes when the country is exposed to the divisiveness and the possible untoward results of a constitutional convention.

I hope you are successful in persuading your colleagues in the House and Senate to adopt H.C.R. 69.

Sincerely,

Charles Alan Wright
